VOL. XLV.—No. 4. CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., THURSDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 21, 1915. PRICE TWO CENTS.

MISS ELMORE'S HOME WAS A SOCIAL CENTER

That the home of Miss Mary E. Elmore, whose will is contested by her nephew, James H. Elmore of Brooklyn, was the social center of Highland, was brought out on Wednesday afternoon in supreme court during the trial of the contest by the testimony of a number of prominent residents of that village, who were called by Judge Clearwater, attorney for the executor, to rebut the testimony given by the contestant's witnesses that Miss Elmore was incompetent. The witnesses for the executor also testified that they had always found Miss Elmore to be a rational woman in all her actions and conversations. The trial was continued this morning before Judge Hasbrouck and a jury.

Among other things charged by the contestants was that when Miss Elmore executed this will she was unduly influenced by Miss Frances Bruyn, a school teacher at Highland, who by the terms of the will is left the Elmore home and its furnishings. During the course of the trial that afternoon Judge Hasbrouck stated that so far there was no evidence shown to prove that Miss Elmore had been unduly influenced in making her will, to which Amos Van Etten, on behalf of the contestant, objected. It is likely that if the case is finally sent to the jury that this question of undue influence will not be submitted to them by the court.

At the close of the contestant's case Judge Clearwaer in rebuttal called a number of witnesses and also introduced in evidence a letter written by Miss Elmore to Miss Bruyn which read. "My Dear Fanny: I want you to sell everything you don't want Don't say Mollie had them. My bedstead you can burn up if you can't sell it. I hope you will take as much comfort in using them as I do in giving them I can't write any more. From one who loves you dearly, Mollie."

It was brought out that Miss Elmore was known to everyone in Highland as "Mollie."

Miss Elmore was an exceptionally good card player and was a member of the Auction Bridge Club of the village, which met at her house from time to time to play cards. Only ladies were members of this club. She was also very fond of music and although she did not belong to the musical society of the village they met at her house for rehearsal.

Among the prominent residents of Highland called by Judge Clearwater were Supervisor Philip Schantz and wife, Mrs. J. W. Blakeley, Miss Rowene Harcourt, William E. Wilcox, George W. Pratt, Howard E. Wilcox, Mrs. Harcourt Pratt, Harry W. Maynard, Attorney S. G. Carpenter and wife, Captain Reuben H. Decker and Harcourt Pratt. Their testimony was all to the effect that Miss Elmore was exceedingly rational at all times when they met her and that she took an interest in the social and civic activities of the village and that her home was the social center of Highland.

Mrs Rebecca Howell, 80 years old, of Montclair, N. J., told of visiting Miss Elmore at various times and told of a conversation she had with Miss Elmore at the time of the death of Miss Elmore's brother, Alden Elmore, at Highland. She said that Miss Elmore told her that James H. Elmore, the contestant, sang and whistled about the house when he came up to attend the funeral of his uncle

Mr. Van Etten on cross-examination asked her if she believed it and she replied that she did.

At 5 o'clock that afternoon Judge Clearwater said that he had several more witnesses he wanted to call and court took a recess until 10 o'clock this morning.

To Get Sober.

Peter Barnhart was arrested on Wednesday night by Policeman Reardon for public intoxication. He was sent to jail to have a chance to sober up before being arraigned before the court.

C. K. LOUGHRAN FOR COUNTY CLERK

Everyone who has had any business at the county court house will recognize the features in the cut herewith presented. Even though his name may have escaped the occasional visitor, he is remembered as "The man who is on his job." In public office such a designation is worth having.

"The man who is on his job" is Christopher K. Loughran of Kingston, at present the efficient and obliging clerk of the board of supervisors, and the Republican nominee for county clerk.

As supervisors' clerk he has gained the enviable reputation of being "The man who is on his job." That doesn't mean that he appears at his county office for a shameless average of fifteen minutes a day and spends the rest of his time in looking after private business affairs. Instead, it means he is doing exactly the work for which the taxpayers pay him a salary; that he is attending to the county's business and is not leaving it to a deputy, or an assistant deputy, or a deputy assistant deputy, or the janitor, or anyone else If any reader doubts this statement let him seek anyone who has been supervisor—regardless of politics—since 1906, and put the question squarely. The answer will be the same in every case.

Mr. Loughran was born in Kingston on December 27, 1874, and is a son of the late Dr. Robert Loughran of Kingston, and Helen Kiersted. Dr. Loughran is remembered as one of the most efficient physicians and surgeons of Ulster county. His practical surgical experience was acquired in the battlefield hospitals of the War of the Rebellion—the doctor was the regimental surgeon of the "Old Twentieth," (80th New York Volunteers)

Christopher K. Loughran received his education in the Kingston grammar schools and in Kingston Academy, from which he was graduated in 1892. He also attended Yale University, from which he was graduated in 1896, and the New York Law School, where he was graduated in 1898. He was admitted to the bar the same year and has since followed his profession. In 1906 he became clerk of the board of supervisors and has served in that capacity since then. His painstaking attention to the work of the office, his thorough and comprehensive mastery of details and the care of the many important records of the office are better known to supervisors than to the general public. For that reason, if anyone questions the statement that Mr. Loughran is "The man who is on his job," he is respectfully referred to any supervisor since 1906.

Like his father, Mr. Loughran has been actively associated with the Republican party and from 1904, for eight years was secretary of the Republican County Central Committee.

Socially, Mr. Loughran is a member of the Kingston Club, B. P. O. E., Masonic fraternity and the Mendelssohn Club, which has been instrumental in raising the standard of music in Kingston through its complimentary concerts each year.

In accepting the nomination before the Republican County Convention, Mr. Loughran promised that if elected he would devote his entire time to the duties of the office. Anyone who knows Mr. Loughran knows he will do that. It is what the taxpayers expect a man to do and it is what county clerks have done until the past three years.

Mr. Loughran is so situated that he can devote all his time to the work for which the taxpayers pay him. He is "the man who is on his job."

The Boatbuilders' Ball.

The seventh annual ball of the Boatbuilders' Social Club at Washington Hall Wednesday evening was a success both socially and financially. Excellent music was furnished by McLean's orchestra for square dances for the older people and the more modern dances for the younger set. An old fashioned supper, such as was served in the Washington Hall of long ago was prepared and served by Jacob "Buddy" Snyder, an experienced chef.

Hospital Meeting.

The annual meeting of the City of Kingston Hospital will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the city hall. Three managers in place of Dr. A. A. Stern, Howard Chipp and Dr. George Chandler will be elected.

PRACTICAL POINTS FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

The attendance at the sessions of the County Sunday School Convention is growing. The Wednesday evening and fifth session brought out a crowd which filled the seating capacity of the auditorium floor.

The Rev. W. F. Stowe again led in the song service and found occasion to compliment the audience on its singing.

The presiding officer, Dr. Banker, introduced the Rev. Theodore F. Bayles, Educational Secretary of the Reformed Church in America He carried greetings to the convention and also extended them from the New Jersey State Sunday School Association. His address on Sunday school organization and administration treated the subject as a problem of vital importance. It is high time for the Christian workers to take heed of the lessons of the practical world and the things done there toward the furtherance of their intent. To what, asked the doctor, was the defeat of the suffrage question in New Jersey due? All newspapers were agreed it was the efficient organization of the liquor interests and machine politics.

The successful manufacturer is throwing out the obsolete machinery; if he clings too long to it his progressive competitor soon outstrips him and the race is lost. He quoted Billy Sunday's story thus. "The carpet in front of some people's mirror is worn threadbare, but by the bedside where one kneels to pray is as fresh as ever." The purpose, said Dr. Bayles, is to produce Christians, and not church goers, and Billy Sunday's comparison was quite right if that is all the present organization and administration is accomplishing.

The hymn, "Nothing But Christ Within," and the offering preceded the Rev. Charles Howland Cookman, well known and well liked as well, in Kingston and by Kingston people He felt, he said, very much at home in Kingston. Although he had made two addresses to the convention he recognized more people he had not seen then and extended his greeting to them. His address, "The Pupil at Work," was delivered in the well known Cookman style. Work was the means to an end, but work and irk sound similar and to make work play would simplify the task and make it easier and better for both pupil and teacher. But be sure it is quite nicely dovetailed.

Dr. Cookman's remarks closed the day's very well done work.

Wednesday Afternoon Session.

The Wednesday afternoon session of the Ulster County Sunday School Convention was especially noteworthy for the amount of practical help given to those who are teaching the children in our Sunday schools. The addresses were decidedly specific in character, avoiding glittering generalities. The session was opened by the Rev. Charles Howland Cookman, formerly pastor of the St. James M. E. Church, now of Yonkers, who addressed the mass period on "Sunday School Pedagogy; Aims and Methods." "Pedagogy" was defined as "the science of teaching; knowledge of the subject; ability and tact to present it; skill to inculcate important principles." This will apply to pedagogy anywhere in the world. The speaker told of the gradual growing together of the day school and the Sunday school in the development of child character. The successful public school teacher must now do more than teach arithmetic or history. He or she must by instruction and influence develop character. So must the Sunday school teacher. And the latter should be as scientifically well equipped as the former in the knowledge of teaching.

In the second place, the teacher must have a full knowledge of the Bible, totally, by books; in the relationship of the various facts contained therein; the history of the peoples; the geography; the Old and New Testaments and their relationship. Again the teacher must have a knowledge of the truth and the ability to present it to the child. And there must be a vital and personal knowledge of God and Christ, on the part of the teacher. The final aim of teaching the boys and girls must be to train and develop them into men and women of Christian character, ready for Christian service, and the doing of the world's work.

After the singing of a hymn, the large audience was divided into three groups for a sectional period in the School of Methods. Mrs. Myra Brinkerhoff of Poughkeepsie had charge of the Elementary, the Junior Age; Paul S. Davidson of the Secondary. The Teacher's Equipment; and Mrs. J. J. Jennings of the Adult, the Home Department. Each department was most interestingly carried on, but The Freeman reporter was especially attracted to the first, which had to do with the junior children, whose ages were given by Mrs. Brinkerhoff (who made a deep impression upon her hearers), as being from 9 to 12 inclusive. This was the period of energy, that force which impels to activity of mind and body. Sociability also marks this period, when the boy seeks the "gang," the girl the "club." During these years habits are formed as impressions are made the deepest and most lasting in the soft clay before it "sets." Now hero worship prevails. The speaker thought the boy indeed blessed whose hero was his father. The boy's hero was, however, always a man; the girl's might be either a man or a woman. This is the omnivorous reading time of the child and it is the golden memory age, for mental impressions made now need no associated ideas to stamp them upon the plastic mind.

When the convention again assembled as a whole in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, Dr. Cookman, continuing where he left off in speaking on the School of Methods, spoke on "Lesson Planning." "How long should it take to prepare a Sunday school lesson?" would be a question hard to answer, for more than mere study must go into its preparation. First of all there must be consecrated personality which is needed everywhere. The teacher must cultivate him or herself improving the mind, the heart, the will and their co-ordination into living. There must be a personal conviction of the reality and closeness of Jesus Christ. There must be love. Christ won men and women by His love; and because of that great love, "the common people heard Him gladly." Influence and example are of inestimable weight. Good humor is needed in teaching, and where there is a natural lack along this line, it should be cultivated as should be enthusiasm. Dr. Cookman did not mean a frothy enthusiasm, but that which is born of the faith that one can conquer in what they are undertaking. Then one must have poise, balance, the good judgment to meet the demand of the pupil with the correct supply of information or sympathy. So who could say how long will it take to prepare a lesson?

The afternoon session was brought to a close with a second sectional period, during which Mrs. Brinkerhoff had the elementary department, "Story Telling;" Mr. Danielson, the secondary department, "A Boy and Girl Religion;" and the Rev. D. G Verwey, the adult department, "The Use of the Standard of Service." As a conclusion of the other period, Mrs. Brinkerhoff considered the advisability of story telling to the smaller children.

DEAD MAN TO BE THE SCAPEGOAT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 21.—When Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railway today resumed the witness stand in the United States district court to continue his "inside story" of the financial gyrations that accompanied the gobbling up by the New Haven of the transportation facilities of New England, steam trolley and water, it was reported that the defence, before the conclusion of the trial would spring a surprise by laying all the responsibility on a dead man, J. P. Morgan.

It was rumored that the defendants would attempt to show that all the acts alleged by the prosecution as in violation of the Sherman act, were done on the orders of Morgan, who controlled the New Haven railway.

Reports were current in the court room that the government today was not entirely confident of obtaining a conviction. Mellen is the chief witness for the prosecution, and it was said that his friendliness for the millionaire past and present directors, and their apparent friendliness toward him more or less disconcerted the attorneys for the prosecution.

Mellen, in his two hours of preliminary testimony, which covered completely the transportation situation in New England as it was in 1890, laid the foundation for his story of the absorption by the New Haven of the rival lines and he was expected today to get started on the inside facts, upon which the government hopes to send his former associates to prison.

J. B. Millard, former Mayor of the City of Topeka, Kansas (a very "dry" state), says:

Prohibition exercises a demoralizing influence by creating a disregard of law. The great majority of people evade, indirectly violate, or induce others to violate the law, to obtain liquors. It is more expensive to enforce than all our other laws; requires most of the time of the police; is a large expense to the city for prosecuting officers; drives away business from city and state, and enriches Missouri cities ("wet") by a large liquor business they get from Kansas (very "thirsty").

AGRICULTURE IN THE PHILIPPINES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Lake Mohonk, Oct. 21.—Agricultural development in the Philippines was the subject of an interesting address given by Frederic W. Taylor, formerly director of Agriculture in the Philippines, at the Lake Mohonk Conference on the Indians and Other Dependent People, here today.

After outlining the wonderful work the Bureau of Agriculture is accomplishing, Mr. Taylor pointed out the possibilities of far greater development in the Far Eastern Archipelago. When the scope of the Bureau is extended, and the Filipinos are educated to use modern methods, many of the important crops including rice, and manila hemp, will be greatly increased, Mr. Taylor said.

Mr. Taylor's address in part follows:

"Nowhere can oranges and the other citrus fruits be grown of better quality or easier than in the Philippine Archipelago, and yet there is not a place in that country where you can buy trees of known varieties. Neither is any attention given to training or pruning, the trees being left to work out their own salvation.

"Too often the Filipinos seem to take no particular interest in what is being done along these educational lines. But a definite and very considerable advance has been made since the American occupation.

"There is one most important phase of the Philippine situation to which I think that Americans give entirely too little attention. What right have we to educate the Filipino to want more clothing, to want to attend school, to want better living conditions, to feel the insistent demand for a broader and better civilization, unless we at the same time show him how to get the means, or in other words the money to satisfy in some reasonable degree his aspirations?

"We can no more reasonably expect them to reach out and learn, off hand, how to be more prosperous, economically than they are now than we can expect them to acquire of their own volition, the education that the millions of illiterates need, if they are to become enlightened people

"It is well grounded, well organized efforts, keeping always and ever in close touch with the people, and by gaining and maintaining their confidence and respect, that satisfactory advancement may be made. Without these elements and without good leadership, the advancement of a people in which there is so much illiteracy and so great a diversity of languages must be extremely slow and unsatisfactory."

We Should Not Worry.

"Worry would kill a horse," says Mrs Clara Z. Moore, health expert. "There is no sickness more insidious, no drug more poisonous, than the continued effects of worry.

"Proper physical exercise will remove the worry and the tired out condition that causes it. A sick body often produces a sick mind, and the opposite is also true that a sick mind causes a sick body.

"The moral is, 'If you do not want to be sick do not worry.'"—Chautauqua News.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 21.—President Wilson today issued his annual thanksgiving proclamation, dwelling strongly on the fact that this country has escaped being drawn into the world war that is raging in Europe. His proclamation setting Thursday, November 25, as Thanksgiving Day, follows:

"It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for his many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. The year that is now drawing to a close since we last observed our day of national thanksgiving has been, while a year of discipline because of the mighty forces of war and of change which have disturbed the world, also a year of special blessing to us.

"Another year of peace has been vouchsafed us; another year in which not only to take thought of our duty to ourselves and to mankind, but also to adjust ourselves to the many responsibilities thrust upon us by a war which has involved almost the whole of Europe. We have been able to assert our rights and the rights of mankind without breach of friendship with the great nations with whom we have had to deal and while we have asserted rights we have been able to perform duties and exercised privileges of succor and helpfulness which should serve to demonstrate our desire to make the offices of friendship the means of truly disinterested and unselfish service. Our ability to serve all who could avail themselves of our service in the midst of crisis has bten increased by a gracious providence by more and more abundant crops; our ample financial resources have enabled us to steady the markets of the world and facilitate necessary move... of commerce which the war might otherwise have rendered impossible; and our people have come more and more to a sober realization of the part they have been called upon to play in at a time when all the world is shaken by unparalleled distress and disasters. The extraordinary circumstances of such a time have done much to awaken our national consciousness and deepen and confirm our confidence in the principles of peace and freedom by which we have always sought to be guided. Out of darkness and perplexity have come firmer councils of policy and clearer perceptions of the essential welfare of the nation. We have prospered while other people were at war, but our prosperity has been vouchsafed us we believe, only that we might the better perform the functions which war rendered it impossible for them to perorm.

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the 25th of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

"In witness whereof I have hereunder set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, this 20th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and-fortieth."

Natural Inference.

"Day before yesterday," related a landlord of the Petunia tavern, "a feller that had only been in town a day walked into the middle of the street, right out in front here, gave sort of a shout, and dropped dead. 'Was the train so late that he expected to be obliged to stay here overnight?' asked a hypercritical drummer whose sales had not been all that he had desired.—Kansas City Star.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends who were so kind to us during the illness and death of our beloved wife and mother, and we especially thank our friends and the employers of the American Cigar Factory who sent the beautiful floral tributes.

FRENCH MUNITION TRAIN SCREENED WITH FOLIAGE FROM HOSTILE AVIATORS.

The trainload of shells here shown covered with branches of pine, is on its way to the French front. This strategy serves two purposes. In the first place it renders the shipment innocent looking to enemy aviators who may be flying about and might attempt to drop bombs on it, and second, it prevents aerial observers from locating the positions where ammunition is being concentrated in preparation for an advance.

"Luck."

One of the many ways in which the individual unwisely eclipses himself, is in his worship of the fetish of luck. He feels that all others are lucky, and that whatever he attempts, fails. . . . Their "luck" was that they had prepared themselves to be equal to their opportunity when it came and were awake to recognize it and receive it.—Jordan.

VOTE FOR THE CONSTITUTION.

If a man has a just cause against another man his best friends always advise him to endure his wrong rather than take it into court and become involved in a web of costly and unsatisfactory litigation. That is proof enough that common experience shows that there is something radically wrong with our judicial system. The proposed new Constitution seeks to remedy this condition by providing for swift and inexpensive adjudication of private disputes, through the cutting out of technicalities and red tape.

The time of the Legislature is now taken up mostly with local measures which might better be decided in the cities and counties affected. The proposed Constitution provides for a large measure of home rule, so that our legislators may give proper attention to larger matters. It also provides for the publication of legislative debates and roll calls, so that the people can "keep tabs" better on their representatives.

At present a tremendous amount of money is wasted through the foolish system of issuing sinking fund instead of serial bonds, which on the canal debt alone will cost us $30,000,000 unless methods are changed. Even more waste is due to the system of making the appropriation bill a grab bag instead of a scientific budget. Another cause of high taxes and shameful extravagance is the existence of 157 governmental departments, with overlapping powers, whose duties can better and more cheaply be performed by seventeen departments. The new Constitution is designed to cure all these evils.

As things are now, we have what Senator Root aptly calls "invisible government." Everybody remembers that in the Sulzer administration when the highway scandals were exposed, everybody mixed in with them laid the blame on somebody else, so that in the end no one was punished, unless the dismissal of one incompetent man can be called punishment. It has become clear to the friends of good government that the remedy for this shocking condition lies in enlarging the powers of the Governor so that the responsibility for all good and all evil can be fastened directly upon him. As a Governor always has the Presidential bee in his bonnet, he can be relied upon to insist on the kind of administration which will do him credit, just as the ambitious superintendent of a private business can be counted on to do his best. The new Constitution provides for this reform

This proposed instrument gives new and important advantages to workingmen and farmers. It provides means for making taxation just It preserves liberty In no section does it retrace one step which we have taken in the way of progress. All the opposition there is to it comes from misapprehension. If it is beaten, it will give our State a serious setback. No enlightened citizen can afford to neglect to vote for it.

Gardiner does not intend to remain behind her sister towns in the southern part of the county and this year expects to elect a Republican Supervisor, for which office the Republicans have nominated Matthew Mullen. Gardiner has had many excellent as Supervisors, among whom Mr. Mullen will stand in the front rank. Honest, efficient, having a knowledge of town affairs second to no other man in the town, Mr Mullen in a marked degree possesses all the qualifications needed for a representative of a town having the importance of Gardiner He has shown that he will be always alert to the best interests of the town and as a taxpayer will stand firmly for the protection of the town and the county as well

The Republicans of the town of Marbletown made a wise selection in nominating George S Roosa for Supervisor. He possesses public confidence, he has no axes to grind, but as a taxpayer he is interested only in seeing that every other taxpayer gets fair treatment and that the town receives one hundred per cent value for each dollar raised by taxation. His candidacy, therefore, appeals to men of all parties. The Republican voters of the town can pride themselves and their town in the possession of a man of Mr. Roosa's calibre, standing and integrity. He is the type of man that Marbletown needs and his election by a big majority will go far toward procuring for the town the greatest good for the greatest number, which is the highest aim of government.

Nathaniel DuBois has been so long and intimately connected with the affairs of the town of Rosendale that his nomination by the Republicans of the town for the office of Supervisor ought to be equivalent to an election. Mr. DuBois's knowledge has been acquired at first hand. Everybody knows where he stands Improvements which the taxpayers desired have had his hearty approval and he has stood foremost for and has been active in whatever was for the benefit of the town. The activities of Rosendale have had new outlet in the past few years, and the town needs as its supervisor a man who can readily adapt himself to new conditions while remaining familiar with the conditions as they formerly existed. Such a man is Mr. DuBois and he will be a valuable member of the county legislature if Rosendale voters do their duty.

Foes of Stock Swindlers Meet.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 21.—State officials from all sections of the country met here today for a two days' conference on methods of protecting investors from stock swindlers.

Thirty states now have blue sky laws and several others propose like legislation. The purpose of this convention is to work for uniform state laws to protect the public against conflict with state laws.

The call for the convention was issued by S. T. Seaton of the Kansas

LITTLE LAUGHS.

'So you are going to start a bakery?" "If I can raise the dough."—Boston Transcript.

"How are your daughter and her husband getting along?" "Very well. We haven't been over to see them lately."—Detroit Free Press.

Doctor—"You have had a great shock since I saw you last, your wife tells me." Patient—"Yes, doctor; it was your bill."—Baltimore American.

Hokus—"I can always tell a woman who takes things just because they look cheap" Pokus—"How?" Hokus—"Simply by looking at her husband."—Judge.

"Don't you find it rather lonely since your boy went back to school?" "Yes," replied Farmer Corntossel; "but it's kind o' restful. Josh has been educatin' me an' mother so much that we need our turn at takin' a vacation, same as he did."—Washington Star.

"How was the Senator's speech?" "It seemed to make a hit with his audience. There were prolonged cheers when the meeting broke up, but I don't know whether the applause was due to what the Senator said or the fact that he had finished saying it."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Quick Thinking.

The Chief of Police of Cincinnati tells this one:

"A German shoemaker left the gas turned on in his shop one night, and upon arriving in the morning struck a match to light it. There was a terrific explosion and the shoemaker was blown out through the door, almost to the middle of the street.

"A policeman rushed to his assistance, and after helping him to arise, inquired if he was injured. The Teuton gazed into his place of business, which was now burning quite briskly, and said:

"'No, I ain't hurt. But I got out shust in time, eh?'"—New York Times.

Choral Confession.

Two men were discussing the service as they made their way home from church.

"What was that sentence that choir repeated so often?" asked one.

"As nearly as I could make out it was 'We are all miserable singers,'" replied his companion.—Tit-Bits.

Almost An Apology.

A young practitioner appeared before a pompous old judge, who took offense at a remark the lawyer made criticising his decision: "If you do not instantly apologize for that remark," said the judge, "I shall commit you for contempt of court." "Upon reflection, your honor," instantly replied the young attorney, "I find that your honor was right and I was wrong, as your honor always is." The judge looked dubious, but finally said he would accept the apology.—Kansas City Times.

The Traitor.

"I am sorry the doctor says that I have to be alone on my vacation," Wingham Wibbits said to his wife as he unpacked his trunk again to put a collar button in. "But at least, if I can't have you with me, I can send you a postcard every day with pictures of the sea and things on them. Excepting on Sundays, of course."

She kissed him for his unselfiness, and he departed.

She got the entire 12 postcards, one for each week-day, and all with lovely views of the same wave

When he returned home, peeling handsomely from sunburn, his first question was, "You got all my cards, I hope?"

"All 12, William," she replied. "The views of that wave were lovely and I appreciated your handwriting as much as ever, and the dates were all put in beautifully, but still—"

"Yes, Melina."

"Well, you must have given them to an awful bonehead to mail for you to save you the trouble. He mailed them all on one day, just as you wrote them, and I got the whole 12 two days after you left."

Excusing himself, Wingham called a taxi and rode 13 miles out into the country and sat on a fence with his thoughts.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Tea Kettle Talk Number One

If the bottom of your tea kettle were extended down in the fire like this one, the water would boil in just half the time, because the fire would be coming against that much more water-filled surface.

Kingstonian BOILERS

are made on exactly the same principle. The entire fire is surrounded, top and sides, by water. The prompt way it heats up the radiators and keeps them heated, would open your eyes.

Call around. Let us tell you all of this Boiler's economy points. You will make some money if you buy one. But you will lose a lot if you don't.

ANNUAL REPORT OF SUPT. GULICK

The annual report of the Rev. George W. Gulick, superintendent of the Ulster County Sunday School Association, read at the session this afternoon, was as follows:

1. State Work—Every County Sunday school Association is an integral part of its state association. Our work and its success is conditioned on the circumstances surrounding the state work and the measure of success it attains.

The state convention at Auburn in June, 1915, was the largest and most successful from every point of view ever held. The attendance was made up of Sunday school workers, pastors, teachers and county and district officers, a large percentage of whom are men. It is a significant fact that in these days men are finding time to leave their business to attend to the Lord's business.

The program was varied, touching all departments of the work. The speakers were selected for their ability to instruct so that the resultant impression was educational. The delegates went away instructed in the principles and details of Sunday school work.

A summary of the figures reported is as follows: Number of schools, 6,282; number of officers and teachers, 194,169; membership in the main school, 948,109; cradle roll membership, 78,612; home department membership, 83,540; total membership, 1,110,261.

A study of the whole series of tables of statistics would reveal some interesting facts.

The next state convention will be held in Albany June 13-15, 1916. This county ought to have a full representation. Begin to plan and work for it now.

2. The County's Share—Financially we helped the work of the state to the extent of about $130. This was more than usual but not as much as the county ought to give. To bear our fair share of the expense of the work carried on by the state association this county ought to contribute about $400 each year.

So far as statistics go our part of the state work was to report 160 schools, 1,850 officers and teachers, 14,128 members of the main school, 1,297 on the cradle roll, 1,813 in the home department, and a total membership of 17,043. We had 18 standard schools, 37 premium schools and the standard percentage of the county was 53 per cent. Ulster was tied with Ontario county for eleventh place. The average percentage for the whole state was 42 per cent. Last year the average of the county was 42 per cent. We made a gain of 11 per cent. Next year the gain recorded ought to be double that on account of the momentum gained in the last year. The county won a Front Line banner again this year. This is the second one gained.

3. The Departmental Work—During the year the teacher training superintendent has removed from the county. This leaves a vacancy to be filled at this meeting. The work of the other departments superintendents has been carried on with the usual vigor. Letters have been sent out to the number of about 800 for the elementary, home, missionary, evangelistic and rural departments. The superintendents of the various departments will give detailed reports of their work.

4. Superintendent's Work—The office and field work have consumed about 50 days' time this year. The field work has comprised visits to the following district association meetings: Woodstock, Gardiner, Shawangunk, Saugerties, Rochester, Rosendale. Also a special meeting at Sundown. The superintendent has attended the conventions of Orange and Dutchess counties and spoken as a helper on the program as well as representing this county as a fraternal delegate.

The office work has comprised the gathering and compiling of statistics, the correspondence of the superintendent's office and of the department superintendents. There have been sent out about 3,000 letters and papers during the year. The arrangement of the program for this convention and the securing of speakers has been no small task, practically all of which has fallen on the superintendent by vote of the executive committee. The superintendent's expense this year has been $53.75.

5. The Present Situation—The present status of the county has been clearly shown. Our schools are busy, our county stands 11th in a list of 60 counties in efficiency records, our contributions to state work are very small. There are undeveloped resources of life in our communities which ought to be won for Christ through the Sunday school. There are unexplored possibilities of men and of money waiting the work of the Sunday school superintendent and teachers, of district officers and of the county superintendents. This county ought to stand near the head of the procession in number in the Sunday school, in standing on the Standards, in money contributed for the work.

6. Next Year's Work—There are four things that we recommend to the consideration of the county districts and individual schools this year:

1—Complete the district organization. If this county is to reach the highest point of efficiency it must subdivide the work. This can be effectually done by following the state plan and organizing the districts on the same plan as the county is now organized. The plan of this organization can be found outlined in the leaflet entitled, "The District Officers and Their Work." Get one from the state office and study it thoroughly and then proceed to organize down to the ground. Your superintendent would advise that your individual school be organized as fully as possible on the same lines so that in each department there would be a complete chain from the international association to the individual school.

2—The state convention is nearer to us next year than it has been in several years. We must get the benefit and inspiration of this by having a full delegation. Begin to plan for it now. Work it up. See that each district in the county is represented at the convention.

3—We all know that the schools have not reached all the community and that they have not reached the highest point of efficiency possible. The reasons for this we do not state.

However, every school owes it to itself to be as effective as possible. To do this they must use the standards. The county percentage next year must show a decided gain over this year. To do this your school must show a gain. Use your standard sheets and work to make your school as effective as possible.

4—Arouse the interest and enthusiasm of each school for better work. There must come to each school a sacred enthusiasm for the best possible work if we would reach the goal sought.

You may be the individual in your school with the gift for leadership and the enthusiasm for service. Use your gifts for the increase of the work in your school.

Recommendations—1. We recommend the complete organization of the districts at once.

2. We recommend that the schools use the standards as a measure of efficiency, and work to secure a perfect standing.

3. We recommend that each district secure a delegation to attend the state convention in Albany June 13-15, 1916.

4. We recommend the adoption of the following budget for the current year:

Receipts.

Convention receipts	$75
School payments	550
Individual payments	100
Total	$725

Expenses.

Postage	$45
Stationery	12

Superintendent's salary	250
Superintendent's expense	50

Total expense	$682

Respectfully submitted,

LOUIS BROWN.

Although the Sixth ward, in which Louis Brown has been nominated for supervisor by the Republicans, is strongly Democratic, there is every reason to believe that Mr. Brown will give a good account of himself in the November battle of ballots. He is making a heroic fight for the office of supervisor, and daily new friends are being won for his cause.

Mr. Brown is much more than an ordinarily intelligent man. Most of his knowledge of public affairs has been acquired by careful study of events and men, and he is thoroughly alive to the interests of Ulster county's taxpayers. Not only among Republicans is he deservedly popular, but Democrats and men of other political opinions are loud in their praises of his unquestioned fitness for the office he seeks.

Louis Brown was born in this city October 14, 1873. As soon as he reached the age of 21 he entered the political arena, nailing his banner to the Republican staff and remaining a zealous worker for his party until the present day. Every man, woman and child in the Sixth is acquainted with or has heard of Louis Brown and, with but few exceptions, all agree that he will prove to be the right man in the right place if sent to represent that ward in the board of supervisors.

Mr. Brown many years ago became an active volunteer fireman and still takes much interest in firemanic matters. He is a leading member of the Loyal Order of Moose and other organizations. He conducts a confectionery store at 149 Hasbrouck avenue. His reputation as a citizen is spotless. If the voters of the Sixth ward carry out the threats which they have been making for months past, namely, to do away with Democratic misrepresentation by covering it under a landslide of Republican votes in November, they will make no mistake in electing Louis Brown supervisor of that ward.

The Biltmore

(By the House of Kuppenheimer)

There is nothing like good clothes to keep a man young.

Note the brisk style of this BILTMORE Model, for instance. It has the snap and vigor of a crisp Fall morning.

By changing two simple lines of the coat we could add ten years to the age of the wearer.

Or, by another change we could make the suit extreme in the opposite direction.

Not men alone but women who have something to say about a man's appearance—often wonder why it is that so many tailors and clothesmakers cannot achieve dignity, without decrepitude—or youth without exaggeration?

The dictates of fashion are plain; it is only a question of interpreting the fashion with some idea of lines and their effect on the human figure.

Young men everywhere, business and professional men, and the traveled public, are finding out these things. They see the "know-how" in the Kuppenheimer suits and overcoats, and why this store grows and grows.

JAPANESE DANCES FOR THE CORONATION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tokio Sept. 18.—Eight beautiful young peeresses of Japan are busy rehearsing their postures for the dances they are to present before the Emperor and his guests after the coronation banquets in November.

Postures, not steps, Japanese dancing has nothing to do with the delights of rhythmic movement to the strains of languorous music. Like all orientals the Japanese enjoys his dance by gazing upon it, full fed.

Westerners dance with their feet, Japanese with their hands. The dance is merely a series of postures.

Every dance tells a story. It is a novel or drama expressed in the shorthand of a wonderfully worked out system of gestures. The stories are always decorous. Japanese art has never been stirred by sensuality. The incidents depicted in the dances are either heroic, or quasi-historical, or religious.

They will not bring the blush of shame to the cheek of innocence but they may bring the yawn of weariness to the jaws of the occidental diplomatists who will be privileged to see them at the coronation.

The dances to be performed at the ceremonies in November are all historical and some of them have figured at the coronation of the Japanese Eperors from times beyond memory. The Magura-mai (pronounced kang'ra-my) which will be performed before the shrine of the imperial ancestors to solace them in the spirit world, is the very oldest of all Japanese dances and probably the oldest dance left in the world, Arabic stomach dances and similar vulgarities notwithstanding.

It hails from the Japanese mythological period, and purports to be the dance by which, soon after the creation of the world, the Sun Goddess was lured back from a cavern to which she had retired, plunging all the world in darkness. The other Gods desired to coax the Sun Goddess out of her retreat so they placed various treasures (later to become the imperial treasures of the divinely descended monarchy of Japan and as such to play a most important part in the coming solemnities) before the cave, while another goddess danced before the entrance.

Hearing the sounds of merriment, the Sun Goddess peeved out, and the world had light and warmth again. The Magura-mai is a repetition of that dance and commemorates the incident which led to the founding of the dynasty the latest representative of which is Yoshihito, Emperor of Japan since 1912.

That is the sacred, or specially sacred, dance. The others are ceremonial and will be danced before the emperor and his guests at the coronation banquets. They are three in number, the Fuzoki-mai, the Kume-mai and the Gosechi-mai.

The Fuzoki-mai is a peasant dance typifying the labors of primitive man in the fields and his joy at the harvest. It is accompanied by natural and primitive songs, supposed to be sung by the peasants who cultivated the sacred rice which is used in the coronation offerings. It embodies the Bon-odori, or harvest dance, a popular "hop" which takes place on summer days all over rural Japan. The details of this dance vary from village to village, but the central feature is a large ring of posturing peasants who revolve to the sound of the song sung and the drum and flute played by some of their number in the middle.

The Kume-mair is a court dance which is supposed to bring good luck. It has its origin long before the establishment of Japan over twenty-five centuries ago, in the time of Jimmu Tenno, the first human emperor and grandson of the Sun Goddess aforesaid. When Jimmu was on his way to Uda, in the province of Yamato, to subdue a rebellion he composed a song in anticipation of his victory. A brave warrior who was also a minstrel, sang the emperor's song and proclaimed it with the army, like a second "Tipperary," heartening them so that they won the victory and the whole country came under the emperor's control.

At the banquet held to celebrate the victory the warrior performed a dance to the music of the song, using his sword to depict the manner in which the rebel chiefs were slain. The name of the tuneful fighting man was Okume-no-Mikoto, and after him the dance was called Kume-mai. The dance is performed by male dancers who wear gorgeous robes. The dance has been handed down in two families which claim to be descended from the warrior. It is on record that it was danced at the imperial mass held in the Buddhist temple at Nara in 749 A. D. It was again danced at the coronation of the emperor Jokan in 859 A. D. by twenty men with drawn swords in their hands.

It fell into desuetude but was revived at the coronation of the late emperor 37 years ago. It will be performed this year by four of the Court musicians. Immediately after the banquet the dancers, with swords in their hands, will appear from the cellar under the banqueting hall and re-tell the old story to the music of a drum, three harps, a flute and a flageolet.

The Gosechi-mai, or fivefold dance, has the distinction of being danced by five maiden peeresses, to be chosen from the eight who are now being instructed. It is called five-fold because the principal movement consists in a graceful turning of the kimono sleeve five times. Gossechi-mai has an origin like a fairy story.

The Emperor Temmu (622-686 A. D.,) so runs the tale, was a passonate musician. One summer evening he was playing on the koto, or horizontal harp, in his garden. Out of the fleecy clouds the happy monarch suddenly saw appear the goddess of dancing who signified her approval of his playing by dancing a lovely movement to it.

The emperor naturally retained a vivid recollection of the goddess's postures, and when the vision faded, he had the court ladies taught. Ever since the Gosechi-mai has been danced at the imperial court on occasions of special ceremony.

All of these dances will, of course, be performed to native music—if the strummings and squealings of Orientals can be called by that name. The music is far from impressive to western ears, and indeed can cause acute suffering to the musically inclined. I knew a woman who during an illness was nearly driven distracted by the falsetto belchings of a court musician who used to rehearse his masterpieces within ear shot of her room.

To the groaning of primitive wind instruments, the jingle of very tinkly strings, and the vocal contortions of singers whose great aim seems to be to avoid letting a natural sound escape from their lips the dances will be performed. It is no doubt highly appropriate that these dances, themselves belonging to the most primitive stage of humanity, should be accompanied by the music of the same era. But the Japanese themselves, as a matter of fact are deadly tired of their old noises—with the exception of a few incurable conservatives—and Western music will also find a place in the ceremonies.

Western music is in its infancy here, and there is no tradition of sacred song associated with the occasion. It will be "Allied" music, Germany being barred, not because the Japanese object to German music so much as because the court musicians to whom the selection has been entrusted is a Russian. The modern pieces will be played at the second banquet, which is to be in foreign style, and they have been selected from among the works of Seriapin, Verdi, Massenet, and Bizet.

Modern also is the style of Coronation Song which is being taught to every child in Japan. The song is the result of a competition held by the education department. Over 2,000 compositions were sent in and six prizes were awarded. It is patriotic in sentiment and has a swinging tune. More ambitious is the program of new coronation music which is being arranged by the Tokio Academy of Music in commemoration of the great event. For this Prof. Yossimaru is composing a coronation hymn and a coronation march on western lines. These will be played by a choir of 130 voices and an orchestra of fifty. The style it is announced, will be strictly classical. The pieces will be notable as the first Japanese effort to compose music on foreign lines for a national occasion.

Famous Actress says Coffee Harms Complexion

Declares Coffee Habit Grows On One, Dulls the Mind, and Weakens the Muscles.

People who decide to retain youthful looks and a clear, healthy skin, may be surprised to learn that so eminent an authority on beauty as Lillian Russell declares, in a recent issue of the Chicago Herald, that "both coffee and tea have a harmful effect on the complexion. The most youthful skin can be made dry and sallow by the over indulgence of tea or coffee.

"It always depresses me when I hear a woman say, 'I must have a cup of coffee the first thing in the morning, and generally sip it in bed.' She would be shocked if she heard someone else say that they must have a cocktail before they could begin the day.

"I heard a most beautiful old woman say, 'Do you think I would dry up my blood and ruin my skin by drinking tea?'

"The coffee habit grows on one, and when coffee is used as a stimulant there is a reaction, which means depression, and causes over indulgence or the use of stronger stimulants. In the continued use, stimulants dull the mind and weaken the muscles."

NOTE—It is a satisfaction to know that in the pure food-drink, Instant Postum, increasing thousands are finding a delightful morning beverage—a beverage free from drugs or any harmful substance, and free from coffee's ills, but rich in those food elements supplied by Nature for building good blood and strong, healthy bodies.

Empire State Educators Meet.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 21.—More than one thousand educators met here today in the annual convocation of the University of the State of New York, a somewhat theoretical body without a home which controls public instruction. The meetings today and tomorrow are held in the auditorium of the state education building.

The convocation opened with a memorial service for the late chancellor of the university, Dr. St. Clair McKelway. The new chancellor Dr. Pliny T. Sexton, presided and Dr. John Huston Finley, commissioner of education, made the address of welcome.

Besides New York state college presidents, superintendents and teachers, there were present many educators from all parts of the country and from Canada.

The three most important topics of discussion are: "The State and Education," "The State and the Farmer," and "The State and the Alien."

PROGRESS IN PHILIPPINES.

More Filipinos Know English Than Spanish.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Lake Mohonk, Oct. 21.—More Filipinos now know English than know Spanish, Frank L. Crone, director of education on the Philippines, told the Lake Mohonk conference on the Indian and other dependent people here today.

"No element of consequence considers the possibility of adopting any other language than English for official purposes in the future," Mr. Crone continued. His description of what American rule has accomplished along educational lines in the islands was in part as follows:

"The present public school system in the Philippines conforms to American ideals while adapting itself to the social and economic needs of the Filipino people.

"It is a part of a great program to make effective the instructions of President McKinley who declared it was the duty of the new government to promote the happiness, peace and prosperity of the Filipino people. It had its beginning in the schools established by the American army as fast as it extended its control over the Philippines.

"Hundreds of American and thousands of Filipino teachers have labored long and faithfully to develop this system which now extends to every part of the archipelago, enrolling more than 600,000 pupils in 4,300 schools taught by the 10,000 teachers.

"The school system is maintained by the Filipino people and is a source of no expense to the people of the United States.

"A balanced curriculum has been worked out with its three phases, academic instruction, industrial instruction and physical training. Throughout the elementary grades satisfactory work must be done in the three phases of this balanced curriculum to merit promotion.

"The courses of study are divided into certain units which permit pupils to leave school, if obliged to do so, at certain periods with something definite accomplished which will go far toward meeting their life needs. A four year primary course is offered which is following by a three year intermediate and a four year high school course.

"The latter course leads to the university established by the government and including six colleges and four special schools.

"A consistent building program has been in operation for a number of years, and the schools now have nearly a thousand permanent school buildings, counting all types, reinforced concrete being the most common.

"An athletic program has been carried out with great success and now more than ninety-five per cent of the pupils are receiving physical instruction in such a way as to vitally affect their lives.

"The people favor liberal appropriations for school purposes and give large sums as voluntary contributions where public funds are insufficient."

Peculiar Flint Rock.

J. C. Oliver of Woodstock, Vt., has a white flint rock somewhat smaller than a man's fist. Through one end of it is an irregular hole smaller than a lead pencil, caused by a vein of iron which had rusted out. The long root of a dock plant has grown through the hole, filling it solidly and extending some distance in the ground beyond.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

John Church has only recently been elected assistant manager of the football team, however he has been assisting Sibley in that capacity for some time.

Sam Peter, one of the high school's best athletes, is back at school, but due to the results of his severe accident received while in bathing at the Kingston Point bathing beach last summer, he is as yet unable to give his most valuable services to the football team.

Due to the extremely large number of girls taking lunch at school, tables have been ordered for their use and will be installed as soon as possible.

During the past week the girls of the cooking department have begun to make themselves useful, and already, upon two occasions, have served tasty article of warm food to the appreciative luncheers. In return for this service the recipients pay a nominal sum to defray the expenses for materials.

Within the last week, added equipment consisting of tables, hoods etc. has been installed in the biology and chemistry departments.

Along with other renovations at school, there is the orchestra. The establishing of the latter is a step in student activity and [illegible] everyones' thoughts on the subject when it made so brilliant [illegible] at its first appearance in assembly. It being too much to ask the [illegible] musicians to donate so much of their time as they would have to in order to play every morning, it has been decided that they favor the school with their services only on Friday mornings. Therefore it is needless to say that the whole student body enters into the exercises Friday with added spirit and enthusiasm.

The debate, scheduled for Nov. 1, has been postponed until Nov. 12. The question to be debated is Resolved: That immigration into the United States should be restricted by an educational test. The affirmative is taken by Stelle (leader,) Devo and Van Winkle, while the negative is supported by Greene (leader,) Church and Winston.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Miss Alice Fields of 407 Albany avenue was surprised by a party of her young friends on Saturday afternoon. Those present were Frances Pierce, Hazel Bonesteel, Pearl Smith, Catherine Gallagher, Marion Hendrickson, Sadie Ellmendorf, George Weber, John Gallagher, Ellsworth Duffley, Harold Boyd and Walter Bonesteel. Games and music were played and at 7 o'clock refreshments were served. At 8 o'clock the guests departed, after all having had an enjoyable time.

McEnelly's Singing Orchestra again proved that they are the best musical organization appearing in this city, for both concert and dance music by rendering an exceptional program for the concert and dance held at the armory Wednesday, under the auspices of Company M. For dancing McEnelly, as usual, had his men playing in their up-to-date and charming manner, the singing also coming in for its share of praise. Wednesday night the singing members of the orchestra were in fine voice. In round numbers seven hundred of the dance loving public were in attendance, which was considerable over the number present at the opening dance of the season. Thanksgiving night the orchestra will be at the armory for the third dance of the series. On this holiday the armory should be taxed to its capacity.

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. DeVoe at Accord on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock when their daughter, Miss Ada Dell was united in marriage to the Rev. Walter W. Voight, pastor of the Accord M. E. Church. The Rev. Fred Deming, district superintendent of Newburgh, officiated. The bride and groom left for Albany by auto at noon amidst a shower of rice and confetti. They will return to Accord Saturday for a few days, thence to Newburgh, where Mr. and Mrs. Voight will reside, he being pastor of Trinity Church. Guests were present from New York, Kingston, New Jersey and Newburgh.

The Atharbacton Club opened its meetings for this season at the home of the president, Miss Louise Van Hoevenberg, with a pleasant social hour. Afternoon tea was served. Mrs. Cleon Owens of Covington, Kentucky, presiding at the prettily decorated tea table. Other guests were Mrs. Paulding, mother of Miss Helening, and Mrs. Russell Dunmore of Utica, nee Miss Jessie Roberts, a former club member. There was an unusually large attendance. The club is this year studying "Modern Poetry," and Miss Noone had the first paper, her topic being, "Indications of a Poetic Renaissance." The paper was of rare excellence and Miss Noone illustrated various points in the same with readings of certain poems. These were so charmingly given as to make the afternoon a pleasure. The club will meet next week with the Misses Kennedy.

Leehive-Perrine.

Miss Myrtle Perrine and Dennis Leehive, both of this city, were united in marriage on Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in St. Joseph's Church by the Rev. Thomas B. Brown, the assistant rector. She was attended by his sister, Miss Elizabeth Leehive, as bridesmaid, who was attired in a light blue broadcloth suit with hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations. The best man was Stanley Perrine, a brother of the bride. Y., was solemnized at the bride's home on Hickory street, Ellenville, Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. A company of fifty friends were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. W. H. Moser, pastor of the M. E. Church, of which the bride is a member. The wedding color scheme was pink and white and the entire decorations of home and the tables were of the same. The bride, a much loved young lady of the village, was very beautiful in a gown of white silk over net, with court train of bridal satin. She wore a very exquisite tulle veil with point applique and carried a large shower bouquet of brides' roses. She was attended by Miss Greta Rapp as bridesmaid, who was indeed charming in an exquisite gown of pink chiffon cloth over pink satin, and carried a large bouquet of pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Theodore Talfor, and both were in the usual evening wedding dress. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Guy L. Gould. The beautiful wedding march was played by Mrs Guy L. Gould. Following the wedding ceremony and congratulations, a very elaborate wedding supper was served. Mrs. Talfor, one of Ellenville's finest young ladies, a graduate of the local high school, and of Oswego Normal, and for the past two years a teacher in the schools at Lynbrook, will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends with whom she was a favorite. Mr. Talfor is one of the best young men from his home town, holding a position in one of the banks at Lynbrook. The gifts to the young people were many and beautiful, attesting true friendship of relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Talfor left the same evening by auto for Kingston, amid a shower of confetti, and by train for Lake George, where their honeymoon is to be spent. Returning the young people are to reside at Lynbrook, expecting to eat their Thanksgiving dinner in their newly furnished home. The young friends of the bride followed by auto the bride and groom to Kingston. Very hearty congratulations and best wishes are given this couple for a long, happy and prosperous life together, blessed with health.

WHY EDISON IS HONORED.

Thirty-sixth Anniversary of Discovery of Incandescent Electric Lights.

Thirty-six years ago, on the 21st day of October, a remarkable achievement in science and engineering first literally "saw the light" at Menlo Park, New Jersey, and established for itself and its inventor a place of prominence and honor in our daily lives destined to endure as long as the world shall last. That achievement was the invention of the incandescent electric light. If we could find no other reason for its extraordinary greatness, it would be in the immediate use to which it has been put by mankind. If we review a few of the greatest inventions and discoveries, those that have played the most conspicuous part in the development of civilization, we find that many years and often centuries have elapsed before any have arrived at such a degree of perfection that they could be called commercially successful. Gunpowder first made its appearance on the battlefields of Europe more than a century after its discovery by Roger Bacon in 1242; the application of the steam engine to railroads and boats came only after a century of patient waiting and development. The invention of the flanged wheel which has been referred to as one of the most important steps in the progress of civilization, was made so long ago that even the name of its discoverer has been lost to us.

But aside from its immediate utility there can be little doubt that future historians will include, with the discovery of the steam engine, gunpowder, the art of printing and a few others, the invention of the incandescent electric light on October 21, 1879. That was the birthday not only of the incandescent lamp, but also of the science and industry of electricity. In the space of a single lifetime this new science has sprung from the experimental laboratory into a position of equal or greater importance to any of those which have acquired a venerable sanctity through long ages of scientific development. The science of electrical engineering is, in fact, so young that it scarcely yet possesses a history, but those interested students who may trace back the short development of almost any one branch now claiming its specialists by the thousands, will invariably find that the beginnings of that branch lead back to Edison and his inventions. No great practical advance in the science of electrical engineering, no electrical industry nor any great commercial application of electrical energy took place until Edison accomplished his epoch making popular application and gave the practical incentive to the further development of the science.

And in many other respects his invention must stand forth unique in the history of inventions. The story of those strenuous days at Menlo Park has been too often told to need relating in detail. Among scientists it will always remain the great classic example of the technique of invention, and to the rest of mankind it will in equal measure be the great scientific romance. The scientist will always study and attempt to imitate the patient and persistent investigation of facts and the brilliant inductions therefrom in the realm of the unknown, for only scientists and electrical engineers can comprehend the breadth of the field covered by Mr. Edison in those few months of indefatigable work. The lamp itself was scarcely more than a detail; the major part of the effort involved equally brilliant work in the whole theory of the generation, transmission and application of electric current—all vitally necessary and important parts to the commercial production of light from the incandescent electric lamp.

But to the layman—the mind not versed in the intricacies of scientific detail which Edison so perfectly mastered, his invention was equally spectacular and remarkable. The world had long thought, and in fact still in some measure thinks, that a "laboratory" is but a place for impractical work in the theories of science. In the year 1879 we were thrilled with the news of a great practical invention issuing from such a laboratory. It was as though in a former generation the world had been suddenly wrizzed by the report that Paracelsus in his "laboratory" had finally achieved the impossible and solved the problem of the transmutation of metals. The dramatic climax could not have been greater.

And neither the scientists nor the public has failed to learn its lesson from Edison, the great schoolmaster; the world of science in continuing his patient, industrious research by scientific methods, and the general public in the better esteem in which it holds learning and science and laboratory cult. Edison by his invention gave us a lesson in the scientific management of research which industrial laboratories throughout the country are today making use of, and which seems destined to result in untold future beneficent discoveries and inventions.

If we add to these features the incontestible boon to mankind which has resulted directly from Mr. Edison's invention of the incandescent electric light—a revolution in the lighting system of the whole world, we can not doubt that future generations will accord to October 21, 1879, a respect which hitherto has been given to political anniversaries only.

An Exception.

In the death of Von Beck Canfield, Philip Livingston Chapter, Sons of the Revolution, suffers a loss which will be keenly felt by the chapter, as a whole, but particularly by those who have labored with him these past few years in the active work of the organization. Affiliating with us in 1912, he has accomplished more for the upbuilding of the society than many of us whose membership runs back to the founding of the chapter. The official board will greatly miss his earnest and active co-operation, and the membership of the chapter generally will realize with sorrow how great has been their loss in his demise.

If This Is Your Birthday
OCTOBER 21.

The most fortunate periods for people born on this date are the weeks of May and December 28. In the week of June 21 they should be cautious in financial affairs, guard against long journeys and exposure. As a commercial organizer this nature will find big success.

In the undeveloped Libra man we find him a speculator, a gambler and willing to take all kinds of chances. No matter what failure comes by his recklessness he plunges from one chance into another. Sometimes he draws his best friends in with him but never has time to help them out.

In the nature where reason and not impulse controls we find this recklessness changed to keen foresight and an intuitive knowledge of the result of effort. The birthstone is a diamond and the happiest marriage will be with a person born in the last two weeks of January or the first two in February.

The Freeman Want Ads contain hundreds of opportunities for the experienced workers.

TESTIMONY ENDS IN ELMORE CASE

The continuance of the Elmore will contest trial took up the entire forenoon session of the supreme court at which Judge Hasbrouck is presiding at the county court house.

The first witness, J. W. Feeter, of Highland, said he had lived there 32 years and is engaged in the hardware business, is a trust company director and secretary of the water works. His residence is 15 feet from the Mary Elmore house and residence and is the next house on one side of it.

Miss Elmore possessed mortgages to the amount of $4,500 on his business property, worth $15,000. These mortgages she had inherited. He last saw Miss Elmore 20 minutes before the announcement of her death in front of her home, at which time she gaily recognized him, waving her hand to him. Miss Mary Elmore's membership in the Eastern Star and her activities in many societies was discussed and admitted. The will was executed August 25, 1914, and Mr. Feeter had seen Miss Elmore frequently after this date. Auto rides and card parties at which Mary Elmore was rational and happy were participated in by Mr. Feeter as a close and intimate friend of Miss Elmore. When Mr. and Mrs. Feeter retired at night it had been their custom to signal Miss Elmore in the winter by flashing the electric light, in the summer by calling and talking to one another, Miss Elmore being alone and without servants. Miss Elmore was popularly called "Mollie," her home "Mollie's" by her close associates and friends.

Mr. Feeter had known Miss Frances Bruyn 32 years and knew she had been employed in schools of the neighborhood the greater part of this time. Miss Elmore had told Mr. Feeter that she regarded Miss Bruyn as "her dearest friend."

The testimony brought out the fact that the Elmore house had been locked up and unoccupied for a period after the death of Miss Elmore, and later that Miss Bruyn's counsel had advised her to take possession and live in the Elmore property, as it had been devised to her.

Cross-examination by Counselor Van Etten followed.

Mr. Feeter admitted witnessing three wills of Miss Elmore, but did not witness the last will, and knew no reason why he hadn't and did not think it strange. He did not know why Miss Elmore did not join the P. E. O. society. He knew Miss Bruyn rented her home after taking possession of Miss Elmore's house and has occupied the Elmore house constantly. He might have remarked to J. H. Elmore that he thought it very strange Miss Elmore went to Poughkeepsie to have her will drawn.

The next witness was the Rev. J. Wilbur Tetley, now resident of Peekskill, three years pastor of the M. E. Church in Highland, that Miss Mary Elmore was a communicant of and had officiated at her funeral. He testified Miss Elmore was an active member of the congregation in every way, giving freely and participating in the services and socials of the church. He had been a guest and visitor to her home since he had been transferred from Highland, and she always impressed him as a capable and rational hostess.

Mr. Van Etten, cross-examining, asked him if Miss Bruyn was or was not with Miss Elmore at the time of one of Miss Elmore's visits to his home, he said she was not. Asked if he approved of Miss Elmore playing cards or participating in card games, he said he approved, and the rule concerning card playing was a dead letter in his church.

The next witness was William Feeter, aged 78, father of J. W. Feeter. He is a resident of Highland and his house and residence is on the side opposite to the one his son's home is. The Elmore house being between the two, and also about 15 feet away from the Elmore house.

He saw Miss Elmore sitting on the porch of her home the night before she died. They greeted one another. This was a frequent and neighborly custom of theirs. He thought she was very rational and quite active for a woman of her age.

The testimony of Clarence Eiting of Highland, where he has resided 55 years, all his past life, was that he had known Miss Elmore as long as he could remember. He had driven Miss Elmore home in his car from the church social the night before she died. She appeared rational and had always appeared so in his company.

The defense rested and upon motion of Judge Clearwater for the direction by the court, for a verdict in favor of the defendant, the court denied it, and asked the counsel if they were ready to sum up. It being agreed they were the court adjourned until 2 p. m.

CIRCLES OF MERCY FOR WAR RELIEF

There was an important and enthusiastic meeting of the Circles of Mercy of this city, and of those interested in such work as these circles would take up, at the Y. M. C. A. building this morning. Those present were Mrs. George Hutton, chairman, who presided; Mrs. Charles R. Hall, treasurer; Miss Mary Haldane, secretary; Miss Sarah Reynolds, Mrs. Charles Tappen, Mrs. T. J. Hickey, Mrs. Raymond Sanderson, Mrs. Myra Newton, Mrs. C. Gordon Reel, Mrs. Rodney Osterhoudt, Mrs. Everett Fowler, Mrs. George Washburn, Mrs. Samuel Dimmick, Mrs. H. Finch, Mrs. E. D. B. Loughran, Mrs. James Betts, Mrs. John G. Van Etten, Mrs. Frank Dewey, Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. C. N. Reed.

Miss Haldane, secretary, briefly recounted last year's work of the circles, for the relief of non-combatants in Belgium, and for home relief. The same amounted to gifts of 943 garments and $1,030. It was then stated that the plan of work to be discussed this year, was that of making surgical dressings for the present war sufferers. It was shown, through communications received from European hospitals, whether field or trench hospitals, that the need is dire and growing more so, daily. Men which have fought valiantly and have been wounded cannot be given any sort of care, owing to lack of supplies. One or two cases cited as fair examples of general needs were sickening because the sufferers can scarcely be made decent, let alone given sanitary care and comfort. After considerable discussion, it was decided that the Circles of Mercy should devote themselves this winter, to the making of surgical dressings and supplies for the war sufferers. The requirements for this work are old linen, old cotton, old comfortables or quilts, old cloth, all of which must be clean and absolutely without starch, oakum, absorbent cotton and cheesecloth. On Wednesday and Thursday morning of next week, Mrs. Charles R. Hall and Mrs. Williams Carter will be at the Y. M. C. A. building to receive contributions of such articles as are mentioned above—and it might be stated that old table cloths and sheets are especially useful. Each circle chairman is expected to be at the Thursday morning meeting to receive material for her circle to make up, and to further receive instruction as to the doing of the work. In order that each circle would be surely represented, each chairman was asked to appoint a vice-chairman of the circle so that one of other might attend the Thursday morning meetings which will be held weekly. At these meetings the completed work will be brought in and new work received. The public at large is asked to contribute the material, especially the old linen, muslin, quilts, comfortables and cloth, and the ladies of the circle will do the work. When these suplies reach New York, they are there sterilized and sent to their final destinations.

It was stated that there still remained in the treasury, the sum of $50, which had been raised for local relief, and that sum would be held for any emergency arising here at home. As some new materials will be required for what are known as "nurses' kits," any contributions of money will be thankfully received to be devoted to the purchase of these materials, and such contributions should be sent to Mrs. Charles R. Hall, treasurer, 59 Orchard street, or taken to Mrs. Hall, who will be at the Y. M. C. A. every Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Miss Haldane, the secretary, then stated that it would be impossible for her to continue her work as secretary of the Circles of Mercy, and although she would be obliged to tender her resignation as an officer, she would do all in her power to aid in and further the work undertaken. It looked as though Miss Haldane's resignation would not be accepted, but her plea that she was already overburdened with similar duties, was recognized as a most reasonable one, and her resignation was finally accepted with regret and sincere thanks for the efficient work which she has already done. Mrs. Charles Tappen was appointed secretary to fill the unexpired term of office. The meeting then adjourned.

Automobile Skidded.

William and James Ryan, sons of Policeman Ryan of No. 455 Washington avenue, had a narrow escape from serious injury late Wednesday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on the slippery road the other side of the Higginsville bridge and dashed against a large tree growing alongside the road. If the machine had not struck the tree it would have dashed over the high bank into the Esopus creek. The boys were on their way home from Phoenicia at the time. Neither were thrown out of the machine but both were well shaken up. The car had its front axle broken and was otherwise damaged by the collision. It was towed to the Stuyvesant garage for repairs.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Oct. 21.—Is the lateral pass a failure?

Yale perfected it—but what has Yale accomplished with it? It used it against Princeton last year with some success, but its use was a flivver in the Harvard game. Yale tried it against Virginia and Lehigh this year—and it hasn't brought results.

The play is one of the prettiest in football, and looks like one of the most effective, but the great trouble seems to be the slowness of execution. If the line could back the enemy, the lateral pass would be a wonder in making gains—but no line could hold long enough.

The play consists of the center passing to the quarterback, the quarterback passing to one of the backs farther along toward the enemy's goal line and this back, in turn, passing to another player, either an end or back. A lateral pass, successfully made, is good for a gain or from 30 to 40 yards, but its success is hampered by the fact that the play is so slow that the opposition players have a chance to break through the line even before the second pass is made, and lay in wait for the ball as it is thrown.

Another Odd Diamond Play.

The recent world series combat furnished a play that can challenge for the title of "The Funniest Play in Baseball."

It was in the eighth inning of the fifth game. The Phillies were at bat. With two men out, Cravath got a base on balls, and Dugey ran for him. Luderus then took his place at the plate, and on the third ball pitched Dugey tried to steal second. Cady's throw to Scott beat Dugey to second. Scott touched Dugey sliding into the bag and Base Umpire O'Loughlin waved out Dugey, retiring the side.

The Phillies started to take their places in the field and the Red Sox started in for their dugout when it was noticed that Luderus was putting up some sort of protest to Behind-the-Plate Umpire Klem. He pointed to his shirt bosom. Klem solemnly examined the shirt, then majestically raised his hand, walked to the center of the field and conferred with Umpire O'Loughlin.

"What's coming off here, anyway?" queried the crowd.

The mystification was increased when Klem sent Luderus to first base and Dugey to second, and it continued until an official announcer explained that the pitch made by Foster which Cady had thrown to Scott, had grazed the chest of Luderus, entitling him to first base, and giving Dugey second base, and nullifying the out made when Dugey tried to steal second.

Honesty of Baseball Proven.

No better illustration of the honesty of baseball can be had than those last three world series contests. In 1913 only five games were played, and the Philadelphia Club had to turn back over $50,000 that it had taken in for the third game in that town—the game that never was played.

In 1914 the Athletic and Braves management turned back a total of about $130,000 which they had taken in for the third game in each city and this year the Red Sox owners turned back nearly $90,000 for the sale of the third game tickets in that city—the game that never was played because Duffy Lewis and Harry Hooper broke loose with home run swats winning the championship for Boston in five games, and just at a time when it seemed certain that the sixth and probably a seventh game would be necessary.

The Billiard Wizard.

J. L. Malone, the billiard wizard, who was here a year ago, will be at Fitzgerald's room on Wall street and play an exhibition game against two of the best players in the city this evening at 7:30 o'clock. No admission will be charged. Mr. Malone has just completed a successful trip to Cuba, where he met many famous billiardists.

KINGSTON PLAYS NEWBURGH SATURDAY

The High School gridiron gladiators will clash with those representing Newburgh High School Saturday at the athletic field, the trumpet blowing at 2:30 for the fray. A local team has not busted noses with a Newburgh eleven for about three years and therefore dope concerning the outcome of the game is not at hand.

If the home boys show the same "pep" that has characterized their playing this year, there is no doubt that another victory will be added to the four that have been garnered thus far.

Fenleman, who injured his knee in the Middletown game, will not be able to play. Either Riseley or Sullivan will take his position at right halfback. With this exception the lineup will be the same as last week.

Later he returned to Kingston and took up the practice of his profession. Socially he is a member of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., Kingston Lodge, Order of Elks and the Loyal Order of Moose. In the evening the subject will be, "The Dead Brought Back to Life; a Modern Occurrence." Friday evening in the regular prayer service will be the beginning of the consideration of the reasons "Why Every Believer Should be Sanctified." There will be one reason considered at each service, except the missonary prayer meeting, the last Friday of every month. All will be made welcome at these services.

Religious Chalk Talk.

The Rev. Paul St. John Coleman, "the famous "chalk talker" will be seen and heard in the St. James Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday night. Before Mr. Coleman became a minister he was a well known artist and cartoonist, employed by a New York newspaper. Pictures and cartoons grow and blossom as the artist talks to the congregation and as the congregation looks upon the blackboard. His pictures are often lovely creations in form and color, while they carry a religious message.

Matter of Speech.

As a rule the native of a country will naturally speak his own language better than a foreigner of equal standing. Of course, very few of us speak our own language perfectly, but still fewer speak perfectly any language besides their own. It is true that our characteristically careless habits of speech make the English of an educated foreigner more careful than that of the average American, if not more perfect.
